

REQUIREMENTS FOR MANUSCRIPT PREPARATION

Manuscripts should be typewritten or printed on one side of the paper sheets of standard format (210 × 297 mm) with 1.5 or double spacing and with margins about 25 mm wide. Figures should be submitted on separate sheets. The author should mark in the margin of the manuscript where the figures with corresponding numbers must be inserted. Formulae should be either completely typewritten or completely handwritten. Handwritten formulae in the first copy should be marked up as follows. To distinguish capital letters from the small ones of the similar outline, capitals should be marked by double underlining, and small letters, by double overlining (please use a pencil). Superscripts and subscripts should be marked, when necessary, by arcs, as it is usual in publishing practice. Greek letters should be underlined in red, Gothic letters, in blue, and vectors, in black. To separate fractional digits in decimal fractions, a period should be used. All Russian and Roman letters in formulae are normally printed in italics; if it is necessary to set them in the normal typeface, they should be marked by a square bracket below.

The language of the paper can be either English or Russian. The paper should be preceded by the paper title, the names of author(s), and the summary (abstract) that should not exceed 12 lines, all in the same language. If the paper is in Russian then the title, the names of author(s), and the summary should be given also in English, and vice versa. After the body text of the paper, the references to the literature used should follow in the order they were first mentioned in the text. The address(es) of the author(s) must be located at the end, following the references.

Author(s) should send 3 hard copies of the paper.

To speed up the Editor's work on the manuscript, the author is encouraged to send a computer file containing the text. The format of the file may be arbitrary but TeX-prepared text is preferred. Submitting the computer file to the Editor does not make sending the hard copies redundant.

The total length of the article is not limited, but the Editor reserves the right to divide materials into parts for publishing in different issues of the journal.

All papers submitted for publication are subject to review, and may be admitted, rejected, or sent to the author for completion. Authors are recommended to correct the misprints in the draft copies they will be given. After proof-reading, correcting and signing for printing authors should return the paper to the Editor within a week.

The Editorial Board reserves the right to translate Russian papers into English.
