

REQUIREMENTS FOR MANUSCRIPT PREPARATION

Manuscripts should be typewritten or printed on one side of each sheet of standard format (210 by 297 mm) with 1.5 or double spacing and with margins about 25 mm wide. Figures should be submitted on separate sheets. The author should mark in the margin of the manuscript where figures with corresponding number may be inserted. Formulae should be completely typewritten or completely hand written. Handwritten formulae in the first copy should be marked in the following way. To distinguish capital letters from small ones with the same outline, capital letters should be marked by double underlying, and small letters should be marked by double stressing on top of the letter. Superscripts and subscripts should be marked whenever necessary by arcs, as it is usual in publishing practice. Greek letters should be underlined in red, Gothic letters should be underlined in blue, and vectors should be underlined in black. To separate decimal digits in decimal fractions, the point should be used. All Russian and Roman letters in formulae are normally printed in italics. If it is necessary to print them in ordinary typeface, they should be marked from below by a square bracket.

The text of the paper may be in English or in Russian. The paper should be preceded by the title in the language of the paper the names of each author, and the summary that should not exceed 12 lines, in the same language. If the paper is in Russian the title, the author(s) name(s), and the summary should be repeated in English, and vice versa. After the text of the paper references, to the literature should follow in the order they were mentioned in the text. The address of each author should be typed following the references.

Authors should send 3 copies of the paper.

To speed up the Editor's work on the manuscript, the author is encouraged to send a computer file containing the text. The format of the file may be arbitrary but T_EX-prepared text is preferred. Submitting the computer file to the Editor does not release the author from sending the typed text.

The total length of the article is not limited but the Editor reserves the right to divide materials into parts for publishing in different issues of the journal.

All papers submitted for publication are subject to review, and may be admitted, rejected, or sent to author for completion. Authors will receive a set of proofs of the accepted paper. Authors are requested to correct typographical errors. They will read, correct, and, after signing "passed for printing", send proofs to the Editor within a week.

The Editorial Board reserves the right to translate Russian papers into English.
